The Slutsbs

The slutsbs were the cheese of the district at one time shipped cheese to Liverpool Eng. Called the Caledon cheese factory. belonged to the people who shipped the milk.

see Page 5' #1.

Born in Ireland Co. of Innes pillen. There m- Jennie Rutledge. He was a shoe-maker by trade but farmed in this country. 4 sons & 3 daus. Wife died 1849 and he in 1879. Buried Caledon Cem.

Born in Canada on this farm m- Annie Gillespie. 1 son. 2 daus. He died 1929 Both buried in Caledon Cem.

The women were the cause of the factory's break down. In the summer. the farmers would collect the money for the milk they took to the factory and in the winter time the women made money when they made their cheese at home. There was so much dissention that the farmers gradually broke away from the factory.

Wm. Stubbs was born in Enniskillen, county Fermanagh, in 1802, and there married Jenny Rutledge. In 1826, he emigrated to Canada, possibly with the hypothetical second Graham party, or at any rate, with the same party with which little Jane Rutledge came out. In 1837 he served in the Militia under the command of Captain Wm. Willoughby, father (?) of W.B. Willoughby, against whom Wm.'s son (?), Dr. Wm., ran successfully for Parliament in 1892 on the McCarthy ticket. Wm. Stubbs remains a members of the Church of England, but his brother John, 8 yrs. younger, became a Methodist.

Sir

We have been instructed by Mr. John Stubbs of the Twp. of Caledon in the County of Peel to apply to you for information respecting lot 20, Centre Road West half in the sd. Twp. of Caledon. It appears that this lot about 35 years ago was granted to a soldier (name unknown) who sold out his right to one Francis Nixon of the Twp. of Chinguacousy; from him it was transferred to one James Stubbs & by him exchanged to another person of the same name the Father of the present claimant who willed it to this John Stubbs who has now been in possession over 30 years. The property has now become valuable and as no patent has ever issued he wishes to be informed what steps are necessary for him to take to obtain same.

Caledon P.C.

Sir,

In reference to your application respg. the W.½ lot 20, con. 1, E. C. R. Caledon, I have to inform you that the land was located in 1819 in the nameof Henry Potter on conditions of settlement which appear to have been fulfilled.

In July 1836 Francis Nixon was allowed the land on claim before the Heir & Devisee Commission as assignee of the Locatee.

It will be requisite in order to obtain the land through the original location to claim it in accordance with the provisions of the Heir & Devisee Act, and furnish evidence of due notice of claim of your being the Devisee of your Father, and of the assignments from Francis Nixon to James Stubbs and from him to your Father.

Made High Boots By Hand For Well-Dressed Farmer Over Half Century Ago

Days when hand-made high boots were the pride and joy of the well-dressed farmer in rural Ontario are recalled by William Stubbs, 238 Gladstone ave., who a few days ago celebrated his 86th birthday.

Mr. Stubbs, a shoemaker by trade, used to make such boots himself, more than half a century ago, in the now-vanished village of Hammertown, a few miles from Bolton. Machine-made shoes were not thought of then, and every boot was made to order by hand in Mr. Stubbs' shop.

Wellington boots, reaching to just below the knee, were what the well-dressed farmer wore seven days a week. For Sunday wear, the boots were made of smooth-grained French calf, adorned on the heel and sole with brass designs, and with dark leather motifs around the top.

Fitting snugly, almost, as a glove, getting the Wellingtons on was often a problem, especially when they were new. "I have seen a man struggle for half an hour in my shop before he got a boot on," Mr. Stubbs says. "But I always said that if they slipped on easily when they were new, the boots would be too big after they had been worn a while, and the heel would ride up and down." Built for wear as well as appearance, shoes made by Mr. Stubbs have worn for as long as ten years.

For years, the Stubbs shoe shop was a social centre for farmers of the district, who gathered to chat during the winter evenings. Then, foreseeing that machine-made shoes were going to destroy the market for hand-made footwear, he sold the shop, gave up his trade and moved to Toronto.

That was 53 years ago. On settling in the city, Mr. Stubbs began reading The Telegram and it has been his favorite newspaper ever since.

Later, the wagon-making establishment and the blacksmith shop, which were the other business places at Hammertown village, gave up business, too, and now the one-time cross-roads centre is a memory only.

"I was past there not long ago, and there is nothing left at all," Mr. Stubbs told the reporter. "The cemetery was all overgrown with weeds, too."

In Toronto, he worked successively in the plants of the John Inglis Co. and the William Davies Co. before retiring a few years ago.

Mr. Stubbs was raised in Hammertown, and learned his trade at the village of Sand Hill, a few miles away. There he met Miss Emily Porter, whom he later married in Bolton on New Year's Day, 1872. Mrs. Stubbs died a year and a half ago.

A family of three boys are all living. Sam and William, of Toronto, and Albert, of Stratford, also eleven grandchildren and 16 great-grandchildren.
